

Doar seeks impeachment OK

Nixon charges aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Articles of impeachment holding President Nixon personally and directly responsible for the Watergate scandal are under consideration by the House Judiciary Committee.

The articles are part of a package presented by Special Counsel John Doar, who says the evidence in support of them warrants Nixon's impeachment.

Doar's analysis of that evidence continues today in another closed-door session dealing with charges of illegal intelligence gathering, misuse of government agencies, tax fraud and contempt of Congress.

More discussions and a presentation of arguments against impeachment by the minority staff are scheduled for early next week and on Wednesday the committee will begin its fateful deliberations, with the possibility of a vote on whether to recommend impeachment by next Saturday. The committee sessions are expected to be televised.

Any recommendation by the committee will go to the full House, which would decide whether to impeach Nixon. If the majority votes impeachment, the charges would then go to trial in the Senate, with a two-thirds vote needed for conviction and removal from office.

In his opening presentation Friday, Doar dropped the role of the impartial investigator presenting facts without conclusions and laid down what most Democrats described as a strong case for impeachment on the basis of Watergate alone.

His performance produced an angry response from Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, who said Doar was "out of order in the extreme" in marshalling facts on the side of impeachment.

Several Republican committee members said they thought Doar did a good job in pulling together a case from the mass of material before the committee.

"I think it was a fair time for him to tell us how he thinks," said Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., one of the uncommitted Republicans. "He has been very restrained up until now and I think he was fair today."

Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a staunch Nixon defender, said while Doar's presentation was pro-impeachment, "I thought he did it very well."

In a 306-page summary of the evidence, Doar said that Nixon decided shortly after the June 17, 1972 Watergate break-in to cover-up White House involvement.

"There is clear and convincing evidence that the President took over in late March (1973) the active management of the cover-up," Doar charged.

The proposed articles of impeachment join four other sets of articles proposed by committee members in the presentation.

Under a preamble charging Nixon with violating "the sacred obligation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the Office of President of the United States, and to the best of his ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution," the draft lists four subject areas:

—Watergate, including the break-in, the cover-up, the payment of hush-money, the destruction of evidence, the interference with attempts to investigate it. "For all this Richard M. Nixon is personally and directly responsible," the draft article states.

—Abuse of power, a catchall article covering wiretapping, the Ellsberg break-in and the use of the Internal Revenue Service against political enemies, all described as "part of a pattern of massive and persistent abuse of power for political purposes...The pattern of conduct has been at the direction of Richard M. Nixon and on his behalf, acting both personally and directly and through his personal agents at the seat of government and their immediate subordinates."

—Refusal to comply with eight committee subpoenas requesting tapes of 147 presidential conversations, an action, the draft says, that places Nixon "in contempt of Congress and the cause of constitutional government."

—Tax evasion, an article based on Nixon's deduction of $576,000 from his income taxes for a gift of vice presidential papers, which, says the draft, "constituted a fraud upon the United States."

The drafts proposed by committee members cover much the same ground but add additional charges, including bribery, the impoundment of congressionally appropriated funds, the secret bombing of Cambodia, and the "dirty tricks" used against Democratic presidential candidates.

President's anger over ITT bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon temporarily halted an antitrust action against ITT in 1971 by telling then Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst to "stay the hell out of it," according to a presidential transcript made public by the House Judiciary Committee.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard L. McLaren's aggressive antitrust policies made Nixon so furious that the President told Kleindienst on April 19, 1971:

"...I want something clearly understood, and if it is not understood, McLaren's ass is to be out within an hour."

"The ITT thing — stay the hell out of it. Is that clear?"

"I don't know whether ITT is bad, good or indifferent," the President went on. "There is not going to be any more antitrust actions as long as I am in this chair."

Evidence gathered by the Judiciary staff and released Friday generally supports the President's contention that he knew nothing of the ITT pledge to help support the 1972 Republican National Convention. The President is shown to have consistently argued against filing antitrust suits against conglomerates just because of their size.

Kleindienst pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge for refusing to testify fully about the same conversation before a Senate committee considering his nomination to be attorney general.

Nixon had been accused of agreeing to settle a series of antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. out of court because of a pledge by an ITT subsidiary to help underwrite the cost of holding the 1972 Republican National Convention in San Diego. The convention was moved to Miami Beach after the pledge became known publicly.

Ford to steer clear of impeach process

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said he won't engage in any "arm-twisting lobbying" to ward off President Nixon's possible impeachment by the House.

"I think that's an insult to most members of the House," Ford said.

At the same time, the vice president, who maintains evidence does not exist to prove Nixon has committed any impeachable offense, said he will campaign for Republicans in this fall's elections on a "highly selective" but still unspecified basis.

Ford himself appeared slightly confused as to what that basis is. He told a news conference Friday afternoon in Roanoke, Va., that he might well campaign for and support Democratic candidate who had shown support for Nixon administration policies.

En route by plane to Hot Springs he modified that stand and repeated earlier statements that there may be some Democratic candidates whose districts he will not enter in support of their Republican opponents. "I have no plans to campaign in person for any Democrats," Ford said through a press spokesman.

Ford did campaign for Rep. Caldwell

GERALD R. FORD

Butler, R-Va., a member of the House Judiciary Committee which soon must vote whether or not to issue a bill of impeachment against Nixon.

Ford told reporters he would campaign for Butler again, no matter how Butler votes on impeachment.

And he said that holds true for any Republican House member.

Referring to critical comments by White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Ford said: "I certainly would not call the manner in which (the House Judiciary Committee) has operated a kangaroo court. I think they've worked very hard to do a responsible job."

Ford is to spend the weekend playing golf at a resort hotel in Hot Springs. He will address the Virginia Bar Association tonight.

Turks invade Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Bloody fighting raged today in Cyprus on the first day of a massive Turkish invasion by sea and air.

Turkish jets bombed and strafed much of the strategic Mediterranean island, including the capital, Nicosia, and the area between Nicosia and Kyrenia, a resort town on the north coast.

Airborne troops made at least four drops on the island, three in and around the capital, which is 10 miles inland from Kyrenia. Fires burned in Nicosia.

Greece declared a general mobilization and moved troops toward its border with Turkey, raising the possibility of a direct clash between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies.

Turkey's semi-official news agency Anatolia reported today that Greek aircraft headed toward Cyprus had been intercepted by Turkish fighters near the Greek island of Rhodes.

The agency did not say whether any planes were shot down. There was no official confirmation of the Anatolia report.

Rhodes is about 250 miles west of Cyprus.

United Nations peace-keeping forces that have been on Cyprus for 10 years were reported trying to arrange cease-fires in some areas. A British forces radio report said fighting had been halted for 3½ hours in the Limassol area of southern Cyprus while convoys evacuated foreign nationals from Limassol to a nearby British base.

Turkish F4 Phantom fighterbombers hit a mental hospital in Nicosia, killing at least 20 persons and wounding 60, an Associated Press photographer reported.

Cyprus Radio, controlled by the military-backed government that toppled the regime of Archbishop Makarios on Monday, reported that six Turkish planes had been shot down.

At the request of Greece, the U.N. Security Council was summoned into urgent session in New York to take up the invasion.

The Turkish attack early today was six days after the coup, which revived fears by Turkish Cypriots of annexation by Greece.

Turkish planes bombed Greek sections of Nicosia. Fires burned in at least 10 areas in and around Nicosia, the worst at the airport and near a Greek Cypriot camp.

Residents huddled in stairwells, basements and other parts of their homes seeking shelter from the fighting. Many held radios to their ears, trying to learn what was happening.

In a broadcast six hours after the start of the invasion, Ecevit declared: "The Turkish government did not resort to armed action before all the other means were tried, but to no avail."

Actor Joe Flynn found dead; captain on 'McHale's Navy'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Joe Flynn, 49, born in Youngstown, Ohio, and best known as gruff, bumbling Capt. Wallace Binghamton on the television show "McHale's Navy," was found dead Friday in his Bel Air swimming pool.

A team of police officers began an investigation of his death.

Flynn's wife, Shirley, told authorities he went swimming late Friday night. His 16-year-old son, Tony, discovered the body at 5:50 a.m.

Attempts by ambulance attendants to revive him were unsuccessful.

Flynn was widely known for his roles as a fussy, fuming stuffed-shirt in nine Walt Disney movies, numerous other films and on television.

He recently completed "The Strongest Man in the World" for Disney and was doing the voice of the Villainous Mr. Snoops for a new cartoon feature, "The Rescuers."

"McHale's Navy" was on ABC for four seasons starting in 1962 and starred Ernest Borgnine. Tim Conway made his debut on the show, and Flynn later starred with him on CBS' "The Tim Conway Show."

He is best remembered as a comedian, but he began as a serious actor.

"When I first started out in 1954,"

He said that under treaties, "Turkey is co-guarantor of the independence and constitutional order of Cyprus. Turkey is fulfilling her legal responsibility by taking this action..."

Flynn recalled recently, "nobody considered me a comedian. I was struggling actor. All my early roles in such films as 'The Big Chase,' 'Desperate Hours,' 'The Ten Commandments' and 'The Seven Little Foys' were serious characterizations."

His first comic role came in the 1961 film "The Last Time I Saw Archie."

Flynn was born Nov. 8, 1924, the son of a Youngstown dentist. He got his first taste of acting at the age of 6, when he was called in as a replacement for Olsen and Johnson's "Hellzapoppin'." He toured with the show one summer, until his father called him back to continue his education.

He attended Notre Dame University, then served in the Special Services division as an entertainer in World War II. After the war he earned a degree in speech at the University of Southern California and taught speech.

He later traveled with touring stock companies, appearing in nearly 50 productions. He made his movie debut in "The Babe Ruth Story" in 1948, then quit the business in 1950 to run for the Ohio Legislature as a Republican. He won in the primary but lost in the general election.

Surviving are his widow, the former Shirley Haskin; and two sons, Tony and K.C.

Plans made to explain lottery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Lottery Commission announced formation of a speakers bureau Friday to encourage lottery play by increasing state residents' understanding of the game.

"Hopefully, a good understanding of the lottery will mean good participation," said David M. Pelunis, assistant director of public relations.

The lottery's seven regional managers and executives from headquarters will be available to give talks to civic, service and other groups, said Pelunis.

Personal contact has convinced some lottery officials that many Ohioans have unanswered questions about the game.

"Apparently, a lot of people don't read the newspapers," Pelunis said.

The talks will be based loosely on managers' briefings to ticket sales agents and will try to answer the questions lottery personnel are asked most often, Pelunis said.

The presentations will start with a 20-minute talk and leave plenty of time for questions, he said.

The talks will describe how the game works, go over the dollar amounts players can win, describe precautions being taken to prevent sale of fraudulent tickets and even offer a short history of the Ohio lottery, he said.

Groups seeking to take advantage of the new service should contact lottery headquarters, Pelunis added.

U.S. policymakers approach Cyprus fight with caution

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

American policymakers are playing their cards in the tangled Cyprus situation with an eye to the Soviet Union as well as to the Greek, Turks and Cypriots themselves.

All through the past week, before today's Turkish invasion of Cyprus and reports that the Russians have placed seven divisions of troops on alert, the United States, plagued by a quarter century of cold war phobias, had begun to appear in a most curious situation.

In the Wonderland of diplomacy, things — as Alice would have put it — got "curiouser and curiouser." The Cyprus takeover by Greek-officered insurgents produced a situation wherein the Americans seemed caught in a sticky web of contradictory aims.

Officially — and commercially — the United States is eager for steadily better relations with the Soviet Union.

Yet in the Cyprus blowup the American stance was obviously dictated by fear of that same Soviet Union. Detente is one thing, but any threat to American access to bases surrounding the U.S.S.R. or to the American position in the Mediterranean would be quite another.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies in Europe are much closer geographically to the Soviet Union and logically should have more to fear in terms of a need for such military conveniences as Greece and Cyprus could provide.

But while the West European allies were about unanimous in damning the junta that toppled President Makarios, the United States minced ap-prehensively into the situation, finding it painfully awkward.

There can be little quarrel with the American effort, after the coup was an accomplished fact, to prevent a military clash between Greece and Turkey. Such a clash could tear asunder the eastern anchor of NATO. Still, Washington clearly was singularly diffident about how it handled the Greek regime. There was no outright condemnation of the Cyprus coup. While others protested, Washington pictured itself as "trying to evaluate the situation."

So once again, as it had so many times before, the United States as the leading democracy in the world found itself stepping out of character, solicitous of the sensibilities of a military regime, in glaring contrast with the attitudes of the Western allies.

'Preamble express' arrives in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Preamble Express rolled into Columbus' Union Station Friday on a preliminary run along the route to be traveled next year by the bicentennial-celebrating Freedom Train.

The four-car express, painted red, white and blue, is here to begin preparations for the arrival of the Freedom Train when it carries historic U.S. documents to an estimated 50 million Americans along a 17,000-mile route.

Mike Berger, media coordinator of the project, sponsored by the American Freedom Train Foundation, said the express' cross-country journey will take about four months compared to the two-year-long tour the Freedom train will make.

"We're just setting up public relations and arranging for security in the 76 cities where the train will stop," said Nancy Killoran, chief hostess of the project.

Mrs. Killoran, an Ohio native, pointed out that making security arrangements in each city is an "essential part of the preliminary journey not only because of the priceless cargo aboard, but also because it will be necessary to establish some sort of control over the thousands of people viewing the historic memoirs in each city."

Moving walkways will carry 2,000 people an hour through the Freedom's Train's 10 display cars, Berger said. He noted that some items the cars will carry include the final draft of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Betsy Ross' flag and Joe Louis' boxing gloves.

"We're trying to work out some sort of arrangement with city officials and local bicentennial committees," John P. Killoran, general manager railroads for the foundation said.

Killoran said he and his wife meet with local officials because each city is expected to propose a site for the program and arrange parking and sanitation facilities. The cities are also expected to house people traveling on the 24-car Freedom Train, Killoran said.

"Actually it doesn't cost the local districts anything because they get 25 cents of every $1 charged to persons viewing the articles in the display trains," Killoran said.

MARRIAGE APPLICATIONS
 Marcus D. Haugen, 19, of 611 Fairway Dr., student, and Elizabeth A. Gebhart, 17, of 564 Woodland Dr., office worker.
 Bill J. Michael, 24, of 307 Mace St., salesman, and Blanche J. Phillips, 28, Inskeep Rd., secretary.
 Ronald L. Rickey, 33, Rt. 3, Chillicothe, truck driver, and Sherry L. Smith, 24, Palmer St., at home.

JUVENILE COURT
 Complaints alleging possession of marijuana were dismissed against two 17-year-old Washington C.H. girls after Juvenile Court Judge Rollo Marchant granted a motion to suppress the evidence in the case because it was obtained through an illegal search.
 City police officers approached the girls who were in an alley shortly before 2 a.m., telling them they were in violation of curfew, and then searched their purses. There they found what appeared to be marijuana and arrested the girls.
 However, attorney Dennis Ulrich pointed out in his motion that the location of the arrest was not a public alley, but a private driveway and therefore, no curfew regulations apply. This meant that there was no probable cause to justify the search made, and evidence resulting from the search could not be admitted in court.
 Since no other evidence was available, the complaints of delinquency were dismissed.
 A 16-year-old Washington C.H. girl was found to have assaulted another individual as alleged in a complaint and was placed on probation by Judge Marchant.
 A 17-year-old Washington C.H. boy was found to be unruly by violating curfew. The case was continued for disposition.

JUVENILE TRAFFIC
 William T. Triplett Jr., 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Triplett, Columbus, received a 30-day suspension of his operator's license after he was found to have been speeding.
 Jeffrey S. LeMaster, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest LeMaster, 754 High St., was found to be a juvenile traffic offender by speeding. The discipline suggested by the parents was approved and no further action was taken by the court.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE AREA
 Police said Pam Lightle, 24, of Greenfield, was arrested in the municipal parking lot on St. Fayette Street, after a disturbance at the Emerald Inn, 114 S. Fayette St., at which she is employed as a bar maid.
 Investigating officers at the scene, which had drawn many onlookers out of the nearby bars and into the parking lot, were Sgt. Robert Massie, Specialist Larry Hott and Ptl. Larry Mongold. Sheriff's Deputy Don Cox and security policeman O.E. Montgomery were also present.
 An unconfirmed report stated Sgt. Massie had sustained injury during the incident when bitten on the upper thigh by Ms. Lightle.

New production equipment installed at Candle-Lite

Candle-Lite, a division of the Lancaster Colony Corp., has started production on the most modern equipment in the nation for making votive candles, according to Robert L. Bull, Candle-Lite president.
 The automated production equipment, engineered and manufactured in Italy, has been installed during the past two months at Candle-Lite's plant in Leesburg. At the same time, new machines built in England, have been installed for the increased production of birthday candles.
 The Leesburg facility, Bull pointed out, is now not only the largest and most modern producer of votive candles in the nation, but is also one of the highest capacity votive candle producers in the world. Candle producers in Italy are also utilizing similar equipment.

BULL ADDED that the company is now a major competitor in the birthday candle market, and this rounds out a full candle line which includes tapers, spiral, pillars and other basic candle products.

"Until this week," Bull commented, "our sales force has been consistently outselling our capacity. Obviously, we are expecting to capture an increase share of the votive and birthday candle markets."

John B. Gerlach, president of the parent Lancaster Colony Corp., further stated, "Candles are taking on added emphasis in our overall consumer marketing plans. For the coming year we anticipate much greater coordinated marketing of our pottery, glass and candle lines." He added that with dollar devaluation raising the relative prices of imports, these giftware lines have gained increased market opportunities.

Candle-Lite controls U.S. rights to the Italian equipment, but Bull explained that the company has no plans to build or market the equipment in this country.

He noted that the newly-installed votive candle equipment completely automates the basic candlemaking steps including measuring, mixing, heating, pouring, forming, wicking and initial packaging.

4-H Fair entrants inspired by sister

"It was our older sister, Nanette, who inspired us, I guess," Marlene Braun explained when asked what made her and her younger sister, Loretta, so domestic.
 The girls, both members of the Country Cousins 4-H Club, will be entering the "Division I" clothing competition in the Fayette County

 Marlene, who is 17 and a Miami Trace High School graduate, is also serving as the junior fair board member in charge, and 16 year-old Loretta, is one of the junior superintendents. The girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Will Braun of 1188 Hess Rd.

They went on to explain further that older sister, (by five years), Nanette was the first 4-H member in the family in the Country Cousins.

"She was always making her own clothes and we would watch her and try to help. It was only natural that Loretta and I join when we became of age," Marlene said.

The clothing judging is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday and the work of all 31 home economics 4-H clubs will be displayed at the Youth building at the fairgrounds throughout the week.

The Country Cousins 4-H Club is advised by Mrs. Donald Lange and Mrs. Jim Cunningham.

By JOHN P. GRUBER

The Fayette County Fairgrounds has certainly been like a beehive with activity this last week as final preparations were being made for Sunday's opening of the 1974 Fayette County Fair. The Fair Board has put a lot of effort into grounds improvements and changes in the fair program.

Two major improvements which are readily noticeable are the new fence around the grounds and drainage improvements which will be a big asset in the event of rain during the week. A big program change which has created a lot of interest is the addition of the tractor pull on Thursday night.

The main highlight of the fair though for many parents will still be the opportunity to see the youth of the county exhibit project work and participate in the multitude of Junior Fair activities.

Livestock farmer caught in pinch

VALLEY SPRINGS, S.D. (AP) — The last 10 months have been a nightmare of plummeting prices and soaring costs for Dwayne Bly and thousands of livestock feeders like him.

Bly, 31, a college-educated farmer and livestock feeder, is a partner with his mother in a feeder operation in southeastern South Dakota.

Since September, he has seen livestock prices dive nearly 40 per cent, while his costs have risen dramatically.

The rules of the feeder game, until a few months ago, have been: The feeder buys young cattle, fattens them, then sells them at a profit.

But Bly says that since the government imposed price ceilings on beef last year, the rules have evaporated like wisps of steam, taking any hope for profits and stability in the market with them.

"There's always been depressed times, but I don't think it's ever been this bad," Bly said. "The livestock business has its ups and downs, its cycles, like in 1963-64. But then our costs stayed stable.

Cattle expenses shown declining

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department shows cattle feeding expenses dropped sharply during the second quarter of the year but that producers still lost money on their operations.

The estimated cost of producing a 1,050-pound steer in the Corn Belt averaged about $477 during April-June, down from nearly $537 during the first three months, the department's Economic Research Service said Monday.

Although feed costs eased some most of the over-all drop was because feeder stock cost less, the report showed. During the second quarter, it said, a 600-pound feeder steer cost less than $239 compared with more than $292 in the first quarter.

But the report, included in a new livestock and meat situation study, said the figures were based solely on what various items cost during the three months and "do not necessarily coincide" with experiences of individual producers.

For example, feeder cattle or grain

U.S. continues livestock lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government review of the world livestock situation shows the United States continues to have a commanding lead in meat production despite a 6.2 per cent decline last year.

The Agriculture Department said world red meat production, based on statistics for major countries, was down only slightly to 65.6 million metric tons. However, that was only one-half of one per cent below 1972.

Total meat output in the United States in 1973 was about 15.7 million metric tons, approximately one million below 1972. The next largest producing country was the Soviet Union with more than 9.9 million tons, a decline of

We certainly want to extend a welcome to everyone to be on hand for the opening ceremonies and crowning of the Junior Fair Queen at 4 p.m. Sunday.

THE JUNIOR FAIR livestock sales will again be a highlight of the fair for many Junior exhibitors. The Junior Fair Barrow Sale gets underway at 6 p.m. Wednesday, followed by the Market Lamb Sale at 6 p.m. Friday. Local businesses have always supported the sales with a great deal of enthusiasm and we're looking forward to the continued support at this year's fair.

THE FAYETTE County Fair will be the feature activity for most Fayette Countians next week, but there are several livestock activities around the state that may be of interest to local producers. The annual Buckeye Beef Show is set for July 23 and 27. The live show of steers will be at the Ohio Expositions Center, Columbus on July 23 and 27. The live show of steers will be at the Ohio Expositions Center, Columbus on July 23 and the Carcass Show will be at the Val Decker Packing Company, Piqua on July 27.

The 27th annual Ohio Sheep Day is scheduled for Friday July 26, starting at 9 a.m. at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster. A full program is planned for Ohio's sheep producers including discussions of management concerns and tours of the Research Center Facilities.

The Ohio Performance Tested Boar Sale is scheduled for Saturday, July 27 at 8 p.m. at the Swine Evaluation Station in Columbus. A total of 45 performance tested boars will be offered for sale including three Yorkshire boars consigned by Charlie Andrews, of Bloomingburg. The boars offered in this sale are backed by the kind of production information needed by commercial producers wanting to improve their herd.

SIGN-UP in the Fayette County Corn and Soybean Clubs has been excellent this year with 40 signed up in the Corn Club and 22 participating in the new soybean club. Leaf analysis and soil test kits have been mailed to all club members who are reminded that now is the time the leaf samples should be collected.

Speaking of corn, a note this week from Bill Blair, Extension Entomologist at Ohio State University indicated that European Corn Borer populations (first brood) should have peaked and if controls are needed this probably will occur within the next two weeks. Larvae will feed in the whorl area, drill the leaf midrib, and feed behind the leaf sheath before becoming full grown. If you haven't been checking your corn fields for insect problems you will want to start and watch them over the next few weeks.

China and U.S. seeking farm trade inroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has a brisk farm trade contest going on with the Peoples Republic of China for a lucrative market in nearby Hong Kong, the British colony.

China is still way ahead, according to an Agriculture Department analyst, but U.S. farm products are gaining favor among Hong Kong importers. Last year China sold about $484 million worth of farm products to its neighbor, while U.S. agricultural sales totaled about $200 million.

But the U.S. share has more than doubled in a year and may continue climbing, says John B. Parker, USDA specialist in Asian trade. Parker's analysis is in a current issue of Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States, published by the department's Economic Research Service.

China has a big advantage because of geography and can send farm products to Hong Kong on trucks and rail cars while U.S. shipments must travel by ocean vessels.

"The nearby rural areas of China produce the traditional products which characterize the average diet in Hong Kong," Parker said. "In addition to rice, they provide pigs, chicken, ducks, geese, oilseeds, and a wide variety of vegetables for Hong Kong's market centers."

Popular U.S. farm shipments to Hong Kong include cotton, rice, wheat, fresh vegetables, poultry feed, milk and cigarettes. The latter account for about 10 per cent of all U.S. cigarette exports.

another report Wednesday showed cattle slaughter is expected to increase this year in many countries as producers slow expansions of breeding herds.

"Reduced cattle prices, because of worldwide consumer resistance to high meat prices, and high feed costs, are the major reasons for the increase in slaughter rates," the report said.

In reviewing last year's livestock situation, the report said world cattle inventories totaled a record 1.3 billion head last Jan. 1, a gain of 1.8 per cent from a year earlier.

The United States had more than 127.5 million cattle as of Jan. 1, up 4.9 per cent from a year earlier, while the Soviet Union increased its herd to 106.2 million head, a gain of 2.1 per cent.

Although the United States is the world's largest producer of beef for consumer tables — nearly 9.8 million metric tons last year — India historically has the most cattle. Those were estimated at 233 million head, nearly double the U.S. herd.

The world's largest hog producer is the People's Republic of China, estimated by USDA experts at nearly 234.9 million head. The U.S. hog inventory as of Jan. 1 was 61 million, and the Soviet union's 69.9 million head.

Pesticide applicators should be licensed

Ohio's Pesticide Use and Applicator Law requires anyone applying pesticides to the property of another, outside of a structure, to be licensed.

Director Gene R. Abercrombie, of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, states that although the ODA licensed 1,022 pesticide applicators, 995 operators and 599 public pesticide operators last year, there are still many unlicensed individuals making house to house contacts.

Abercrombie encouraged the public to request to see the license of any pesticide applicator whom they intend to hire, and to look for the decal on the person's truck or spray equipment that states they are licensed by the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

Court action has been taken in some cases, if individuals are found to be operating illegally. In a May 14 trial in Warren Municipal Court, Denny E.

Cowger, Sr., of Cowger Tree Surgeons, 607 Dakota Ave., Niles, was found guilty and fined for operating without a license. Besides the $50 fine and $9 court costs, he was placed on one year's probation.

To become licensed under Ohio law, an applicant is required to take and pass written examinations involving the use of pesticides. There are 18 different classifications in which a person can be licensed, with the largest number of licenses in the classification to spray trees and ornamentals.

Abercrombie stressed that it is only through training and education of Ohio's pesticide applicators that pesticides can be applied safely and in a manner for which they have been developed. Applicants are provided with extensive study material to completely educate them in all areas of pesticides, and the written examination thoroughly covers these areas.

Crops, plans progressing for Farm Science Review

Crops for the Sept. 24-26 Farm Science Review, planted in late April and early May, are doing well in spite of a light frost in May and a hailstorm in June. The corn was over knee high when hail struck on June 25. Thanks to an otherwise good growing season, our prospects for good crops and an early harvest are very good, says Dale Friday, manager of the event.

The 355 commercial corn hybrids were in the hail zone, but they have recovered with minimum damage. Only half of the harvest corn received any appreciable damage. Damage to 260 acres ranged from minor leaf slits to some severely damaged plants with the majority of all plants showing good recovery.

Of the 75 acres of soybeans expected to be harvested during the Review, about half suffered some defoliation by the hail. New growth appeared quickly and the plants are blooming now — much shorter, though, than the beans not damaged.

A record number of commercial exhibitors (290) have signed up already for space in the central exhibit area. Some additional lots have been added to the exhibit area to take care of new exhibitors, Friday reports.

All together, more than 700 acres of exhibits, demonstrations, and machinery in action will highlight the big farm show held each year in northwestern Franklin County near the Ohio State University Airport, Don Scott Field.

About $10 million worth of equipment and supplies will be on hand, much of the equipment operating in fields. In addition to the 355 corn hybrids on display, there will be 50 varieties of soybeans, 24 alfalfas, 12 sudangrasses, 24 grain sorghums, and 5 forage sorghums.

In "date of planting" trials, corn will be on display, planted as early as March 14. Ridging and bedding equipment was used to plant some corn and soybeans in ridges. These crops will be on display.

There will be more extensive yard, garden, and orchard plantings for viewers to see at this year's Review. New and expanded displays are planned at the Conservation site.

Educational exhibits are being developed by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. The School of Home Economics will feature "Saving With a Smile." Theme of the School of Natural Resources is "Natural Resources and You."

Each of the College and Research Center departments will have a meaningful exhibit, to be located under tents in the central exhibit area. Topics will range from coping with insects to embryo transplants in dairy cattle.

Open house will be held throughout the Review at the new livestock barns and facilities. Other animal oriented exhibits will again be in the Grove.

Importance of farmer is growing

Never have so many people been so dependent on so few. Today, one farm worker feeds 55 people. In 1952, he fed 16.

John Moore, Extension economist at Ohio State University, says that in the 1960's an average of 100,000 U.S. farmers per year went out of business. This number dropped to about 45,000 per year following the 1960's, because of improved economic conditions, he says.

Today's farmer provides the finest diet in the world. It includes fruit and vegetables, both fresh and canned; more meat per person than in most other countries; grain products such as cereals and breads; and an endless variety of dairy products.

Specifically, this diet included for each person in 1973: 175 pounds of beef, veal, pork, lamb, and mutton; 50 pounds of fresh fruits; 51 pounds of processed fruits and juices; 100 pounds of fresh vegetables; 63 pounds of canned or frozen vegetables; the equivalent of 563 pounds of milk, including such products as 14 pounds of cheese and 18 pounds of ice cream; 119 pounds of potatoes; and 5 pounds of sweet potatoes.

Multiply this impressive list by 55 and you get the average yearly production of one farm worker, Moore says.

This production is unrivaled anywhere in the world, the specialist points out. The output per man hour on Ohio farms alone is three times higher than 20 years ago—much higher than in manufacturing industries, he says.

Agriculture is America's most efficient industry and the farmer her most important producer.

Farm milk prices drop

COLUMBUS—Milk prices may not be down in the store, but they are on the farm. Farm milk prices have just gone through their most serious decline in many years, according to Robert E. Jacobson, Extension dairy marketing economist at Ohio State University.

The basic manufacturing grade milk price (Minnesota-Wisconsin prices series) dropped from $8.15 per hundred pounds in March, 1974, to $6.31 per cwt. in June. This downward price movement took place throughout Ohio as well as across the United States.

The price of that portion of milk used for fluid purposes (Class I) dropped about $1.10 per cwt. in June, equivalent to nearly five cents per half of gallon.

The sharp increase in milk prices last fall and winter led to a significant cutback in demand. Fluid milk sales have been off by about five per cent in recent months.

Opinion And Comment

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

St. Clair's rearguard action

Some months ago I predicted that on January 19, 1977—the day before the inauguration of a new President—the House of Representatives would vote to impeach Mr. Nixon. At the moment his appears to be an optimistic forecast. Mr. James St. Clair has put on a spectacular performance and in the course of it simply run rings around the House Judiciary Committee. Although he is as aware as I am that impeachment is a political, not a legal remedy, St. Clair has insisted that the Committee follow legal precedures on the model of a grand jury. Beyond that, he is the absolute master of the conditon-antecedent gambit. That is, before you can deal with issue Z, you have to solve issue Y; clarification of Y depends on the meaning of X; and so on through the alphabet backwards. The ultimate goal is, of course, to convince the populace that nothing can be understood until everything is clarified: that before you can cope with Z, A must be completely explicated.

Beginning from the premise that American politics is a body-contact sport, I can only express my clinical admiration for St. Clair. By this time, if his comments are to be taken seriously, no two members of the Judiciary Committee are on the same track. The amiable Chairman, Peter Rodino, brought howls from the White House when he allegedly predicted 21 votes in the Committee for impeachment. This said Ken Clawson—who is the White House gunner in this exercise—was an outrageous, partisan prejudgment. I wish I could believe Clawson's diagnosis, but I suspect Rodino hasn't the foggiest notion how many votes he has for anything. To repeat one of President Johnson's favorite maxims: "Conservatives can't make speeches; liberals can't count."

ST. CLAIR'S OVERALL strategy and I have the distinct impression that the President has stopped trying to be his own lawyer) is to simply wear out the American people by having three trials rather than one. The first is currently on the House Judiciary Committee. Assuming that Committee can agree on anything, the second trial will be in the full House on the Articles of Impeachment. And, finally, assuming that a majority of the house can be mustered in support of at least one Article, the matter goes to the Senate for formal determination.

Meanwhile St. Clair is conducting diversionary maneuvers on every front. Take the question of the grand jury's naming Mr. Nixon an "undicted co-conspirator." This play arose from the eccentricities of the law of conspiracy, of which I have already told you more than you probably want to know. In layman's language, an "undicted co-conspirator" is someone on whom the grand jury can't pin a hard rap, but they want to be able to utilize his testimony in the conspiracy trial. Under the perverse rules of evidence in conspiracy trials, his evidence would be inadmissible hearsay unless he was named as an "undicted co-conspirator." In short, while it sounds sinister, an utterly innocent individual in substantive terms could be named an "undicted co-conspirator" merely because he overheard a chance conversation and the prosecutor wants to get the evidence admitted.

Then St. Clair came up with the "heads I win, tails you lose" proposition that a President could not be impeached without a prior criminal conviction, but that a President is immune to criminal process! Try that one on your shoe. (In this connection, although the Supreme Court's refusal to review the criminal conviction of Judge Otto Kerner—who had not been impeached before trial—technically carries no legal weight, it surely is indicative of the Court's unarticulated premises.)

St. Clair, is short, is carrying on a rearguard action comparable to that of Marshal Ney in Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. This is not only a reflection of his talent, but of the incompetence of his opposition. According to the Constitution, the Senate of the United States is the "sole" forum for the trial of a President for "treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors." Let's end this three-stage trial and get the matter before the Senate, where St. Clair can properly conduct the President's defense. And above all, let's get it over with before Americans start dropping dead of boredom.

Migrants help, hinder New Jersey

RICHARD T. PIENCIAC

Associated Press Writer

SWEDESBORO, N.J. (AP)—About a third come from Puerto Rico, their island in the sun. They left there dead broke, hoping one day to return.

Thousands of other migrant farm workers follow the harvests along the East Coast, their children and belongings jammed into battered vehicles resembling those used by the Okies when they went to California 40 years ago.

They pick tomatoes, cucumbers, you name it. They work and sweat and work some more. And buy their food at the company store.

They have helped New Jersey maintain its nickname, "Garden State" but their plight has given the state a black eye.

The "migrant problem" flared into public view earlier this week when State Assemblyman Byron Baer's arm was broken in a melee at the Sorbello migrant farm in this southern New Jersey community. Baer has advocated improved living conditions for migrants.

A Newark Star-Ledger reporter also was beaten.

Baer had gone there to get a rare glimpse inside a New Jersey migrant labor farm. But Marcos Portalatin, the Sorbello foreman accused of breaking Baer's arm, told The Associated Press the 11 workers there don't like "nosey" state officials.

"These people don't come here to help us," he said. "They come here to destroy us and the farmer. If we didn't like working here, we wouldn't be here."

Angel Sanabre, 21, who supports a wife and two children in Puerto Rico, said the workers "get along just like brothers."

Michael Sorbello, one of three owners, contends "publicity seekers like Baer" are just out to make political hay, rather than help the workers.

But among the 20,000 migrants in southern New Jersey, there is considerable discontent.

—The State Department of Labor and Industry reported this week that hundreds of workers are children under age 12, a violation of law.

—Commissioner Joseph A. Hoffman says a number of farmers fail to keep employe records of hours worked and wages paid.

Sorbello workers earn $2.13 an hour. But on many other farms, the legal minimum—$1.75—or less is paid.

—Over the years there have been charges, often raised in lawsuits, of filthy living conditions, inadequate heat and lighting, exorbitant prices at "company stores" and outright brutality.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Olives in hubb's nose
are embarrassing

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a radiologist. He's a wonderful husband and an excellent provider, but he has some peculiar ideas.

For example, when we go out for an evening, he orders a vodka martini with eight olives. If for some reason he doesn't get the eight olives, he cancels the order and asks me to leave with him, which is very embarrassing.

This is not the worse of it. If he gets the olives, one by one he puts them in his nose and sniffs out the juice. He claims it clears his sinuses.

I don't mind when he does this at home, but when he does it in public, I want to crawl into a hole.

He doesn't have any allergies or sinus trouble, so I can't see the sence of this. Should he find a psychiatrist?

RADIOLOGIST'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Yes, but he should find one who drinks martinis with a twist of lemon so they won't fight over the olives.

DEAR ABBY: What does a mother do when her 20-year-old daughter insists on going with a fellow who has no ambition or drive? She is pretty and smart and could do so much better. He is such a nothing. It just tears me apart to see her heading toward a marriage with him. I have talked my heart out, but it does no good.

They have gone steady since she was 17, and she won't even look at anybody else. How can I keep her from throwing her life away on this boy?

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: If she won't look at anyone else, she is obviously in love with him. Don't knock him, or try to tell her how much better she could do or she will feel compelled to defend him. And instead of talking her out of marrying him, she will talk herself into it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a pet peeve. There are parking places marked "For handicapped only" near some stores and office buildings as an accommodation for those who have difficulty getting around.

Although I am handicapped I can still drive, but more often than not, those "reserved" parking places are taken by people who are not handicapped, but are too lazy to park elsewhere. I have seen them jump in and out of their cars while I hobble along on my crutches trying to hold some packages in my arms. If you think it's easy-try it sometime!

ANGRY
DEAR ANGRY: I don't blame you for being angry. Next time, speak up. You'll feel better, and it might penetrate.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you because I thought I had V.D. I never thought you'd answer my letter, but you did. After I got your letter, I took your advice and went to a clinic and got a blood test. I could hardly wait until I got the results.

Well, I called up the clinic and they told me the results were negative! Abby, I don't think I have ever been happier in my life.

I hope other people who suspect they have V.D. don't wait as long as I did to take a test. I am a married man, which made matters worse.

After I got the results, I promised myself that I would never let myself get into a spot like that again.

God bless you, Abby.

LUCKY IN N.J.
DEAR LUCKY: V.D. is still one of our most serious health problems. I hope this reminder will serve to jar others into acting. Those who can't afford a private physician can get FREE and confidential examinations and treatment through their county health departments. This includes minors.

Mentally retarded children to be aided by Altrusa Club

The newly organized Altrusa Club held its first programmed meeting at the Sulky Restaurant on Thursday, July 18.

One of the club's projects is to provide assistance with the mentally handicapped children in Fayette County. Therefore, the program consisted of a panel of speakers who explained their experiences with programs of the mentally handicapped in Fayette County. Mrs. June Slaughter was chairman of the panel composed of Mrs. Jean Baker, Mrs. Polly Beatty, Mrs. Frances Tye and Mr. Carl Whitaker.

Areas discussed were that next fall Miami Trace will have two additional educable mentally retarded units — one for the primary age child and the other for the junior high age child. The teacher of the mentally retarded child has had special training beyond the training of the regular classroom teacher. Also, the teacher will attend many inservice meetings and workshops in order that a fine program is provided. Next fall, the progressive school for the trainable mentally retarded will be housed in Sunnyside Elementary School; there will be space for added activities.

Also, there is a need for summer activities for these children. Other points discussed were that the mentally retarded child needs the fellowship of other children, other children need to develop a compassion and have an understanding of the limits of the mentally handicapped child.

Adults are needed to serve as volunteers in the classroom and offer assistance and support to parents of mentally handicapped children.

The next dinner meeting of the Altrusa Club will be held at 6:30 p.m. August 1 at the Sulky Restaurant with Dr. Nancy L. Conrad, as guest speaker. She will speak on "Indian Lore of Ohio."

Billingham notches 10th victory

By The Associated Press
A sore-armed pitcher helped Cincinnati to its 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night, but a Los Angeles hurler with a pain in the neck kept the Reds from gaining ground on the National League West Division leaders.

Jack Billingham, troubled with stiffness in his right shoulder since spring training, struggled to gain his 10th triumph of the season.

He lasted until the Chicago sixth inning before Pedro Borbon relieved and finished the game with four innings of two-hit ball.

Bill Plummer and George Foster each drove in two runs to pace Cincinnati's 13th victory in 16 games. The hot streak has brought the Reds within 6½ games of the Dodgers, but stiff-necked Doug Rau beat the Philadelphia Phillies to keep the margin from dwindling further.

Unlike Billingham, Rau didn't suffer much before the game. But he wasn't around at the finish. Mike Marshall was, as he has been in most Los Angeles games this season.

It was the second time Rau and Marshall combined for a 4-0 decision. They beat the Expos by that score on April 28.

Mets 4, Padres 2

Jerry Grote had two hits and drove in two runs to back Jon Matlack's five-hitter and lead New York past San Diego.

Cleveland's Bosman no-hits Athletics

By The Associated Press
Cleveland's Dick Bosman was perfect throwing to the plate but imperfect throwing to first base and that one imperfection cost him a chance to be absolutely perfect Friday night.

Making only his fifth start of the season, the 30-year-old right-hander threw 79 pitches to the plate against the Oakland A's and 60 of them were either strikes—he fanned four—or resulted in outs. Bosman also threw twice to first base and one of them was high, glancing off the glove of Tom McCraw for a two-base error.

The miscue cost Bosman a perfect game and he had to settle for a no-hitter as the Indians snapped a six-game slide and Oakland's six-game winning streak by defeating the world champion A's 4-0.

Bosman wasn't discouraged with his narrow miss at what would have been the 11th perfect game in major league history.

"This has got to be the biggest thrill of my life."

Red Sox 3, Rangers 1

Luis Tiant scattered eight hits and Boston took advantage of four Texas errors. Tiant set down the first 12 Rangers until Mike Hargrove doubled to lead off the fifth inning and scored on Jim Spencer's single.

Orioles 5, Angels 4

Don Baylor's home run in the 10th inning enabled Baltimore to end a four-game losing streak after the Orioles had wasted a 4-1 lead. A sacrifice fly by Tommy Davis and a single by Baylor in the first inning accounted for two runs and California starter Dick Lange was chased in the third when run-scoring singles by Brooks Robinson and Earl Williams put the Orioles ahead 4-1.

Denny Doyle homered for the Angels.

Royals 5, Yankees 4

Amos Otis slammed a three-run homer off Sam McDowell with two out in the fifth inning and John Mayberry followed with a solo shot, powering Kansas City to a 4-1 lead. The Royals picked up what proved to be the winning run in the ninth on Fran Healy's single, Fred Patek's double and Jim Wohlford's infield hit.

White Sox 7, Brewers 3

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double as Chicago rolled to its fifth straight victory. Bart Johnson picked up his third triumph in as many decisions since his recent recall from the minors but needed help from Terry Forster in the seventh.

George Scott and Darrell Porter homered for the Brewers.

Twins 7, Tigers 5

Rod Carew singled home one run and had three hits and Larry Hisle doubled home two runs, propelling Minnesota over the slumping Tigers. Dave Goltz, who was greeted by Bill Freehan's three-run homer when he relieved Vic Albury in the first inning, hurled 7 1-3 strong innings to earn the victory.

Striking to continue despite support loss

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals player representative Pat Matson said Friday that despite a decrease in the number of pickets outside the Cincinnati Bengals training camp picketing by the National Football League Players Association would continue.

Matson also complained of the lack of strike support by 17 veterans and 14 rookies practicing in the camp.

"You're elected to do a job by the players, to abide by their wishes, and then they don't stand behind you," Matson said.

The 245-pound guard said he felt the veterans in practice did not really bother to find out about the issues in the strike.

"Everyone talks about the issues," he said. "But a lot of guys didn't go to our meetings. They haven't had the issues explained to them."

The striking NFLPA members had smaller picket lines at camp Friday, with the players reportedly rotating picket duty. Only four NFLPA leaders from other teams were present with the Bengals.

"We'll keep the picket lines up here until this thing is settled," Matson said.

One confrontation between strikers and non-strikers was reported, when Bengal placekicker Horst Muhlmann was allegedly threatened by Minnesota Vikings' Charlie West.

Muhlmann claimed West said "I'm from the Vikings, and I'll get you."

Muhlmann said he replied, "Okay, you can get me, but we got you last year."

"With that he pushed his finger into my throat, and then into my chest real strong," said Muhlmann, a native of Germany.

"If that had happened in Germany, he'd have been sorry."

Bengals Head Coach and General Manager Paul Brown predicted the strike would end "reasonably soon."

Tryout camps

Tryout camps for the Pittsburgh Pirates will be conducted in Canton and Newark. Cook Field in Canton will be the site on July 26 and 27, while tryouts will be held at Edwards Field in Newark on August 2 and 3. The tryouts will begin at 9 a.m. and last until 2 p.m.

Players should be between the ages of 17 and 23. Each player must furnish his own shoes, uniform, glove and personal gear. The Pirates will furnish all other equipment. Players will also be responsible for any expenses incurred in connection with these camps with the understanding that if a player is contracted to a Pirate Organization Club, he will be reimbursed actual reasonable expenses.

No American Legion players will be permitted to participate in these camps unless he has and brings with him written permission from either his Legion coach or from the Commander of the Legion Post he represents.

Padres second baseman Horace Clarke opened the way for four unearned Mets runs to score in the sixth inning, when he muffed Rusty Staub's ground ball.

Clarence Gaston's sixth home run of the season gave the Padres a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning.

Giants 6, Expos 2

Gary Matthews hit two-run singles in the third and fifth, while Mike Caldwell and Randy Moffitt teamed for a six-hitter to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

Pirates 2, Braves 0

Ken Brett pitched a five-hitter and drove in one run with a fifth-inning sacrifice fly, highlighting Pittsburgh's sixth consecutive victory.

All-time home run king Hank Aaron started for the Braves after a three-game absence due to a knee injury, tying Ty Cobb's major league record of 3,033 games played.

Astros 5, Cards 1

Houston's Lee May drove in three runs with a single and his 17th home run of the season and Tom Griffin raised his record to 11-3 with a 7-2-3 inning performance to beat St. Louis.

Joe Torre drove in a run with a fourth-inning triple for the Cardinals, who suffered their seventh consecutive loss and 13th in 14 games.

Progress made in talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although both sides have taken a vow of secrecy, it appears some headway has finally been achieved between National Football League owners and their striking players.

The latest round of bargaining, begun Friday behind closed doors at the Labor Department, was set to resume today at 9 a.m., EDT.

Friday's session, the first to follow a week-long lapse, produced an agreement that neither side would make any further public statements about issues on the table.

Such blackouts traditionally indicate that the bartering has gotten down to business.

Furthermore, representatives of both sides left the closed meeting room in obviously good spirits, some smiling broadly, and laughter could be heard from the hallway at several points during the 4½-hour session.

That was a considerable change from the mood of 11 previous meetings, some of which were marked by shouting and cursing.

But a complete agreement still could be far off, due in part to the sheer volume of the matters under dispute.

There was still no indication that the owners were prepared to make any offers regarding the so-called "freedom issues," at the heart of the dispute.

The players have vowed the strike will continue until there are concessions on the "Rozelle Rule" regarding compensation to a team for a player who plays out his option and signs with another team, and the option and reserve clauses, among others.

Low individual score for the night was turned in by William Mount of the Reds with a 38. The Mets had a total of 220 strokes for low team honors.

Elijah Slays the Priests of Baal

And Elijah said . . . Take the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape . . . (then) Elijah brought them to the brook Kishon, and slew them there.

—1 Kings 18: 40

As the drought in Israel neared its third year, the Lord gave Elijah a new command—to go and meet the wicked King Ahab face to face. This was a difficult task since Ahab and his wife, the notorious Jezebel, had brought great harm to the Israelites, not only leading them into idolatry but, in the name of Baal, their pagan god, had maimed and killed many of them. But Elijah obeyed. And, on meeting the king and the four hundred and fifty priests of Baal, Elijah performed many miracles to prove that he acted in the name of the one true God. But Ahab and his priests refused to believe. It was then that Elijah, realizing their powerful influence, knew that the pagan priests must be destroyed. And, with his sword, he slew them all.

Church exemptions remain effective

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Taxes on church donations?" "Tax exempt status in jeopardy." These are recent headlines from fringe religious periodicals, but despite the scare notes, no such proposals are presently before the U.S. Congress.

Any idea of abolishing the tax deductibility of gifts to churches, schools and other philanthropic institutions is "dead, cold and buried," says a staff member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Regardless of the actual situation, however, reports have circulated widely in recent months in church, college and university circles that contributions to them were about to be made nondeductible from federal income taxes.

The claims have stirred a tide of protests to congressmen, and inquiries to educational and church offices in the nation's capital.

Such ill-founded outcries "could result in a situation dangerously close to that of the boy who cried wolf," causing church people to be ignored even when they have a valid case, says the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, of Washington, D.C.

Its research director, John Baker, says that "during the past few months rumors — based on half-truths and untruths — have spread through the country" that congress is about to act on tax measures that would remove the deductibility of charitable gifts and require ministers to pay taxes on housing allowances.

He says an extensive check shows that Congress, in the foreseeable future, has no plans or intentions to do either.

While it is proper for the churches to speak up on public policies affecting them, he says, they should be sure their actions are "based on solid information and hard facts."

What apparently gave rise to the rumors were some bills introduced, but which never were scheduled for hearings, got nowhere and were soon dropped.

Program held for minister

Madison Mills United Methodist Church hosted a reception for the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Messmer last Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Messmer became pastor of the Bloomingburg-Madison Mills charge in June.

Following a meal on the church lawn, a program was presented in the church sanctuary. Several songs were sung, and excerpts from the "Book of Witnesses" focusing on the story of Ruth were read by Lynette Anderson.

Kathy and Jodie Hanawalt sang a duet, and Cassandra Delay played a piano solo. Carl Benner read some selections of poetry, and vocal pieces were sung by Wendy Hidy, Susan Payne, and Jodie and Kathy Hanawalt before Mrs. Ethel Wilson played a piano solo.

The Rev. Mr. Messmer gave the congregation of brief biological history of himself and his family, and a benediction by Gary Hidy closed the program.

Centennial search

The congregation of the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church is seeking historical data concerning the Methodist churches in Jeffersonville.

The information is being sought to lend background for a Methodist centennial celebration.

Anyone possessing such data in the form of old newspaper clips, photographs or diaries, etc., is asked to contact Mr. and Mrs. George Reedy at the church or Dave Morrow at his home.

Suit filed against cathedral

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)— William Templeton and his wife, Nestle, of Lexington have filed suit against the Cathedral of Tomorrow for $5.8 million in a dispute over a trust agreement.

The Templetons claim in their suit that they agreed to put 6½ acres of property in downtown Lexington in trust to go to the cathedral when they die. In return, they said, the cathedral agreed to finance a lawn mower patented by Templeton.

The suit says the cathedral stopped financing the lawn mower development and took possession of the Templeton property.

The couple ask $5 million in punitive damages and $800,000 actual damages, which they say would cover the value of their land plus the money they anticipated from marketing the lawn mower.

John McDonald of Columbus, attorney for the cathedral founded by Evangelist Rex Humbard, said the Humbard organization denies all allegations in the suit.

He said the cathedral advanced

$80,000 to Templeton "for development of his grass cutter, and now they do not want to repay it."

McDonald said the cathedral has not taken over the Templetons' property but has it in trust under terms of the agreement signed by the couple.

Mrs. Templeton, 69, said she and her husband, who previously supported the cathedral, thought they had a revocable trust, "but when we went to get our property, they wouldn't let us have it."

Opening lead - jack of diamonds.

The outcome of most hands depends on how the defenders' cards are divided.

Declarer's job is to take advantage of a favorable lie when that condition exists and — equally important — to overcome an unfavorable lie if that condition exists.

Take this hand where declarer wins the diamond lead with the queen and plays a trump to the ace, East showing out. This is a disappointing development, since the odds strongly favor a 2-1 division (78 per cent).

South is in danger of going down in a contract that a moment before seemed certain. The fate of the hand now appears to rest solely on the location of the ace of hearts. To play a heart at this point in the hope of finding West with the ace would be relying too much on the element of luck. In the actual hand, such a move would prove fatal.

Declarer turns, instead, to a method that offers a chance of making the hand regardless of which defender has the heart ace. After cashing the king of trumps, the A-K of clubs, and ruffing a club, he plays the diamond king to the ace and leads dummy's last club.

East produces the queen but, instead of ruffing the trick, South discards a heart.

Poor East is endplayed. A heart return establishes dummy's king; a diamond return permits South to discard another heart as dummy ruffs the diamond.

In effect, by adopting this line of play, declarer gives himself an extra chance for the contract. He does not know that East has four clubs, or where the ace of hearts is located, but it costs him absolutely nothing to investigate the possibility of endplaying East.

Winners at the Washington Duplicate Bridge Club Tuesday night were Mrs. Eber Coil and Martin Stark first with 44½. Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Wright second with 43, and Mrs. Charles Fabb and Miss General Adams third with 42. Par was 36.

There will be no bridge game at the Washington DBC July 30. The Wrights will be vacationing that week.

The Family Physician

The importance of the family physician in the total structure of health care seems to be increasing rather than decreasing.

An intensive study of medical practice and community medicine was the subject of a seminar held at the Ben Gurion University of the Negev, in Israel.

The Israel Journal of Medical Science, reporting this meeting, points out that 85 per cent to 90 per cent of all family health problems in the United States are treated by the family physician.

Dr. I. Lewis, of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York, was one of the principal speakers on the topic, "Is There a Future for Family Medicine?"

"Family physicians," he said, "must be prepared to fill a unique and specific functional role in the delivery of modern comprehensive health services."

The American Academy of Family Physicians has extended its training program so that today's family physician is, indeed, a "specialist" in this important field of comprehensive medicine.

People with stomach ulcers know the distress of being awakened in the middle of the night by pain.

A new synthetic drug, metiamide, taken at bedtime seems to be the answer to these unpleasant nocturnal pains.

Dr. G.J. Milton-Thompson, of the Royal Naval Hospital in Plymouth, England, reports that when this drug is taken at bedtime it "significantly reduces acid secretion in the stomach," the culprit responsible for these ulcer pains.

The preliminary series of cases on which this was tried will be expanded to verify the efficacy of metiamide.

Women who ovulate irregularly often fail to conceive. In order to increase their chances of fertility, Dr. E. M. Grimes, at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, has been injecting a synthetic hormone to stabilize ovulation and thus increase the chances of conception.
